MCLARTY MUSEUM

The McLarty Museum is built on the actual historic site of the 1715 Spanish Fleet Salvage camp. It was on this very beach that approximately 1500 survivors struggled to shore after their ships, laden with gold, silver, and jewels, were sunk by a ferocious hurricane. Spain salvaged the wreck sites for four years but it was later forgotten. In the 1960's the wrecks were rediscovered and salvage efforts continue to this day. The McLarty Treasure Museum is dedicated to telling the story of the 1715 Fleet with informative videos and displays of original artifacts including gear, weapons, and treasure from the ill-fated galleons.
